

Front Postcard: Richie Allan,
'whiinyu', (Ngunnawal language for Sun), acrylic on canvas, 2021

Stamp: Detail of woven artwork,
'dhurrabaa' (Gamilaraay
language for 'time of making', by Sarah Loynes, coloured and natural (undyed) raffia. 2021
Photos: Kiri Morcombe

Snailbox | The Slow Project is an asynchronous activity as part of a series of events to be delivered for Creative Recovery and Resilience Forum, by University of Canberra's Centre for Creative and Cultural Research.

it bad I had to google where the stamp goes? .15

galan_andrew I received my first letter from artist Sophie Edwards last week as part of Snailbox | The Slow Project. It was good timing, I've written my first letter to her but been procrastinating and worrying on sending it. This beautiful watercolour was part of the letter I received. #ArtsACT #letters

I'm a writer too but I usually only write to music.

One of my other favourite things to create (that I picked up during lockdown) are tiny water colours, so I painted one for you.

Today was all rain loud, rude waterfalls
over every (we have been rained)

Today was a suddensiege
(yes that's exactly what I mean)
was it rivers rising? shells shelling?
(we have been rained right)

Today was worse news
(do not trust the RATS)
I know no friend but NETFLIX
(we have been rained right out)

Sprigs of foliage
tumble from the envelope
and I feel lucky

Tonight was a new alliance
cockies & conellas jostlescreaching
xrocebatlle truecattle LOVE HATE LOVE (we have been rained right out of our reverte)
all along the inking sky.

Today was a gift:
in the leaf litter, sudden fejoas
green eggs, no ham
(we have been rained right out of our)

trying to educate and build understanding and create harmony. it is very fulfilling.

I had not seen my sister since 2019!

Hopefully the sun will be out and much warmer than today ☺

In all the years we have been friends, we have never written like this!

Warami Wiyanga,
(hello Mum)

I haven't written about pandemic recovery and resilience since I was not affected in the same way as younger arts probe records.

Ngizini budyari!
(I hope you are good)

How is the farm? It must be nearly shearing time.

31 on the 31st is certainly something to celebrate.

Your little family will change soon as we welcome your newest addition. I am so excited ☺

Sending ngubadi (love)